

MICROFAIR MADNESS!!

MICROFAIR MADNESS....

It was Friday the 13th of September, and you were woken up by the sound of hurricane force winds devastating your garden outside. "What typical English weather", you said, "Anyone would think it was Summer."

You climbed out of bed and rescued the cat from the flood that was threatening to engulf the lower parts of your house.

"Nothing could possibly go wrong today".

For today was the day that you were travelling south to visit the 'Personal Computer Whirled Show - The 100th Microfair' to deliver your brand new adventure game to your publisher who had a stall there.

Travel south you did, until you found yourself standing outside 'Sir Clive's Exhibition Hall' - the venue of this years Microfair. Yet all your adventuring experience hadn't prepared you for the task that lay ahead. Halflings, Popetars, Goons and Timelords - You'll meet them all in this crazy computer show. That's providing you can get in - Guess which prat's forgotten the ticket?..

MICROFAIR MADNESS, by Gareth Pitchford, comes in two and a half (hand crafted) parts and is available on the following formats.

"DTHS wishes to apologise for the blandness and boringness of the this advert. Due to the increase in the size of our catalogue (oo-er!), we do not have the room to make individual adverts or cartoon drawings for each game. We have had to cut down on 'witty' comments, such as "oo-er!", and have also had to remove our slogan, "SOFTWARE WITH A SQUEAK!", from the advert. Every effort is being made to return to the zany antics and madness that we once knew..." S.Denyer, Managing Director, DTHS International.

"Once again, DTHS wishes to apologise for the un-originalness and general un-eye-catchingness of this advert. Our artists have been working non-stop for the past two months, trying to make an eye-catching advert, but alas! include a list of all of our games. They are, as yet, unsuccessful. We have still no room for our "SOFTWARE WITH A SQUEAK!" slogan, as well as witty comments such as "oo-er missus" and the like. Many apologies still..." S.Denyer Big-Cheese, DTHS International.
